Liming

Larger increases from lime are obtained when the soil contains plenty of available plant food than when the plant-food deficiencies are not supplied, according to tests by the Kentucky Experiment Station; in fact, the profit from liming on a well fertilized soil was over double that where no fertilizer was applied. Fertilizer used with lime very commonly produces a larger increase than the sum of increases from fertilizer alone and lime alone. It is, of course, a fruitless question as to which is the most important, lime or fertilizers. Both are important and should go hand in hand.

A few years ago the Iowa Experiment Station in a certain test limed a piece of ground, before seeding oats, at the rate of two tons of ground limestone per acre. Red clover was also seeded at the same time. Lengthwise of the field, various fertilizer applications were made, ranging from 50 to 400 pounds per acre. Also some check strips were left that did not have any fertilizer. The oats showed up well, and the difference between the unfertilized and fertilized plots could be seen from far off. But the surprise came in the clover. On the strips that were not fertilized but which had been limed, the clover stand was very poor; in fact, the following year there was practically no clover on these strips. Where the oats had been fertilized, on the other hand, even as little as 50 pounds per acre, the stand was good and the clover made a good crop the next year. Here, of course, was a phosphate-deficient soil. Fertilizer secured both; not neither did lime alone. Both are necessary on many soils.

Davis For Mapp

Morven Park Farm
Leesburg, Virginia
March 7, 1925.

"Hon. G. Walter Mapp,
Accomac, Virginia.
Dear Senator Mapp:

I am writing to offer my support of your candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination in the coming democratic primary.

While we have differed at times as to questions of State I cannot forget the aid rendered by you to the farmers of Virginia while you were a legislator and I, as president of an association of farmers, was advocating before the Virginia Legislature important remedial legislation. While I was Governor of Virginia your senatorial record confirmed my high opinion of you.

Your fairness, fearlessness, frankness and honesty of purpose in the discharge of your official duties appealed to me then, and compel me now to the advocacy of your candidacy.

This is a critical period in the history of Virginia. Her governmental needs are many and the funds at her disposal are limited. An efficient government economically and honestly administered, without fear or favor, is the goal to be sought, and I feel that such will be had at your hands.

With kind regards, I am,
Sincerely yours,
WESTMORELAND DAVIS"

Shot At Gladstone

Sunday night W. B. Clark was shot through and through in Gladstone by John Spiggle, Jr. It is reported that Clark and Alfred Nuttlcomb called at Spiggle's home in a car and took Spiggle's wife out for a ride and when seen by Spiggle he opened fire on the party. Clark is in a hospital in Lynchburg with little chance of recovery. These people are all highly connected in Appomattox and the affair is regretted very much.

STONEWALL

Miss Delia Stratton has concluded a visit of several weeks to relatives in Lynchburg.

Misses Fannie, Isa, and Sallie LeGrand, of Lychburg, were week-end guests of their sister, Mrs. J. A. Stratton.

That Desire You Have for a Beautiful, Livable Home

Let us show you the many things you can have built in your home without extra cost

HERE is a Curtis stairway rich with the romance of early Colonial days. Beautiful Mt. Vernon, where George Washington enjoyed the quiet hours of happy family life, stands today as a tribute to the architecture of these times. Curtis has retained all the dignity and simplicity of the Mt. Vernon stairway design.

This Colonial stairway is just one of the many designs of Curtis stairways from which you may make your selection.

Curtis Woodwork includes such items as doors, windows, moldings as well as entrances, stairs and built-in features, all designed and fashioned with care and skillful craftsmanship.

CURTIS
is the mark that assures you you buy more than "millwork"—the Curtis guarantee of quality.

Let us show you how Curtis Woodwork will add to the beauty and comfort of your home, whether you plan to build or remodel, at a final cost no greater than that of ordinary "millwork."

Our advice is gladly given—free of charge.
